Australian medical researchers consistently make global headlines. Yet our national research strengths do not necessarily connect with the delivery of innovative and high-quality healthcare, or with the development of internationally-renowned teaching hospitals.

Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, Nursing and Health Sciences, Professor Steve Wesselingh, will outline the complex reasons behind this disjunction in this breakfast seminar, touching upon the separate funding models for health and higher education. Drawing on his experience as educator, clinician and researcher, Professor Wesselingh will argue the case for forging stronger links between teaching hospitals and medical schools to deliver outstanding medical care and world-class innovation.

RSVP
Megan Keating
Phone: 03 9905 5971
Email: mnhs.rsvp@med.monash.edu.au

Cost
$42 per person (inc GST)

Date
Wednesday, 25 June 2008

Time
7:15 am for 7:30 am start – 8:45 am finish

Venue
Studio 2
ZINC at Federation Square
Corner Flinders and Swanston Streets
Melbourne, VIC 3000

RSVP: Thursday, 19 June 2008
www.med.monash.edu.au/foundation